MONDAY EVENING, JUNE 13.

A FISH STORY.—In the southwestern corner of Georgetown, S. C., in the Santee swamp, is Dawho Lake, widely celebrated for its great quantity of excellent fish of all kinds. About two weeks ago a terrific hail storm of several hours' duration passed over the place, beating the limbs and leaves of trees into the lake in great quantities and damaging the crops in the vicinity very much. A few days after the storm the fish in the lake began to appear upon the surface of the water by thousands, the number increasing daily, until now the whole surface of the water is covered with them. The water of the lake has always been of a whitish color, but now it is as black as ink and quite bitter. It is said the fish, on first rising, approached the shore, struggling as if to get on land. Alligators, cooters and snakes were seen leaving the lake in great numbers. Dawho Lake is about one and a half miles long, from ten to thirty feet deep and from one to two hundred yards wide. The stench arising from so large a mass of dead fish is terrible. The buzzards are having a carnival. Upon the approach of any one they rise to fly, making a noise similar to the roar of the late August earthquake. Adjacent lakes are not affected.

We accidentally overheard the following dialogue on the street yesterday. Jones, Smith, why don't you stop that disgusting hawking and spitting. Smith, how can I? You know I am a martyr to catarrh. J. Do as I did. I had the disease in its worst form but I am well now. S. What did you do for it? J. I used Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It cured me and it will cure you. S. I've heard of it, and by Jove I'll try it. J. Do so. You'll find it at all the drug stores in town.
